

GERMANY PESTERED BY MOST EXPERT SMUGGLERS OF WORLD

Saccharine Taken Into Empire in Coffins Presumed to Hold Corpses; Furniture Van Also Plays Conspicuous Part

MOVING PICTURES GIVE CONCERN TO THEATERS

Wine of 1911 is Just Coming on Market and Bringing Fancy Prices Because of Its Extraordinary Quality.

BY MORNING JOURNAL SPECIAL LEADER WIRE.
Berlin, May 17.—Smugglers of saccharine, on which there is a high import duty in Germany and a higher one still in Austria, are ever inventing new tricks to elude the authorities of which the public learns only when the customs inspectors hit by accident upon the contraband.

A short time ago the inhabitants of a Bavarian village on the Swiss frontier were amazed to see a modest funeral procession, coffin, pallbearers, mourners and undertaker, all in order, pass through the village with pomp and circumstance and inspectors acting apparently as honorary escort. A halt was made at the police station, the coffin was opened, and from it was taken about a hundred pounds of saccharine which the smugglers had attempted to introduce in this way.

At one of the railroad stations in Berlin the other day one of the roomy furniture vans which in Europe are filled with household goods, loaded in a flat car and shipped to any desired city, was accidentally opened. Railroad employees were surprised to find it loaded with broken furniture of no value. As the car came from Switzerland, the police were called in and a thorough examination for illegal articles was made but without effect. Finally one of the policemen noticed the unusual thickness of the walls of the van. Investigation showed a space two inches wide between the side walls and a commodious secret garage under the roof packed solidly with saccharine. The same van had made the trip between Schaffhausen and Berlin at least once before, according to the railroad records. The van and contents were confiscated, but the contraband disappeared.

Most of the saccharine smuggled into Germany is destined for Austria, the smugglers finding it much easier to introduce it into the Austrian officials with shipments from Germany than elsewhere. Also the Austrian duty is higher.

A classic trick, now exposed and no longer practiced, was to send candies to be blessed to the pilgrimage monastery at Einsiedeln, in Switzerland, after which they were exported to Austria. Here they went, not to the pious, but to a refinery, to be melted up and the saccharine in them removed. Both the monastery and the customs officials were for months taken in by this device.

Moving Picture Shows.
The great success of moving picture shows in Germany has long been a cause for the deepest concern to German theater managers and actors, who are always on the lookout for ways and means to diminish this serious competition.

The latest development is a petition of the German Stage society to the Reichstag requesting that a special law be passed for the regulation of moving picture shows. The society asks, among other things, that the moving picture business be put under the same regulations as the theaters in regard to construction of buildings, fire appliances and safeguards, that continuous performances be prohibited, and that it be made unlawful to serve beer and other refreshments at moving picture shows. The petition gives some striking statistics to prove that the "kino" have cut into theater attendance. In Elberfeld, for example, the number of theater tickets sold was reduced from 178,000 to 99,000 between the years 1906 and 1911, whereas the attendance at the moving picture shows rose in the same time from 120,000 to 880,000.

It is understood that the Prussian government is now preparing a bill that will meet many of the wishes of theater owners. One of the leading features of the measure probably will be to require picture shows to take out a license. Strict regulations will control the granting of licenses, more being given unless the applicant proves that there is a real need for a show at the place in question.

Wine of Wonder Year.
Wine of the "wonder-year," 1911, the higher grade quantities of which are just coming upon the wholesale market, is attaining record prices at the auctions at Mayence, Treves and other centers in the Rhine and Moselle districts. Seven thousand marks ($1,725) for a cask of Niersteimer Riesling of the vintage of 1892 had for years occupied the top of the list in wine prices, but the bidder at this year's auction at once ran the price for 1911 grades up to almost double this, the record figure being reached for a "fuder" or cask of about 600 gallons of Riesling from the vineyard of Count von Kesselstadt, for which 14,019 marks ($3,500) was paid at the auction at Treves. At this rate of almost $6 per bottle for two-year-old wine in the cask, it will be seen that the epicure who desires to taste a properly ripened and matured glass of Riesling Kesselstadt, 1911, a few years hence, will have to spend at least a twenty dollar bill for his wine.

In addition to the cost of a suitable dinner for the occasion, General von Schubert received $2,250 for a cask of Maximilian-Gruenauer-Herrenberger, 1911, and $2,000 was paid for a cask of Seckendorfer-Rothemann-Riesling Auslese.

The values of wine bring to mind the famous bottle in the historical museum at Speyer. This contained an antique shape and was found in a Roman sarcophagus unearthed in 1867, in which is attributed an age of 1,500 years. The bottle contains a white wine, covered on top with a balsamic substance which was once olive oil, placed by the Romans in the necks of wine bottles as a means of excluding the air and preserving the liquid. Analysis proved the fluid to be wine, and other objects in the sarcophagus show that it dates from about 300 A. D.

Military Secrets Guarded.
The zeal of the courts in trying to prevent the disclosure of military secrets is illustrated anew by a case that has just been decided at Cassel. A courier there sentenced a draughtsman, formerly employed in an optical goods factory that made an optical compass for use on the government's submarine vessels, to two months' imprisonment for having used in a catalog some drawings of this compass which he had made from memory. There was no charge that he had communicated them to any foreign power.

TRANSCONTINENTAL AUTO TOURIST DIES NEAR MAGDALENA

Sacramento, N. M., May 17.—Dr. William McDuff, a member of a transcontinental automobile party, died suddenly this morning at the Dallas, west of Magdalena. Doctor McDuff, with his family, was returning to his home at McCook, Neb., from Pasadena, Calif., where he had spent the winter. He took cold on the trip and though sick when he left Springfield, Ark., refused to take to his bed, insisting he could withstand the trip as far as Albuquerque. However, he grew suddenly worse and though every effort was made to reach Magdalena, where he could obtain medical attention, he died before that point was reached. The body is now at Magdalena, where it will be prepared for shipment to McCook for burial. The family will accompany the body, having abandoned the remainder of their automobile journey. The dead man was a prominent practitioner of his home city.
